Brunello Knitwear Style Notes

Members get eleven pages: the blur test, all seven Brunello knitwear ideas with their visual maps, the rebuild lists and close-up checks, the four shop checks, and ten outfits to wear this week.

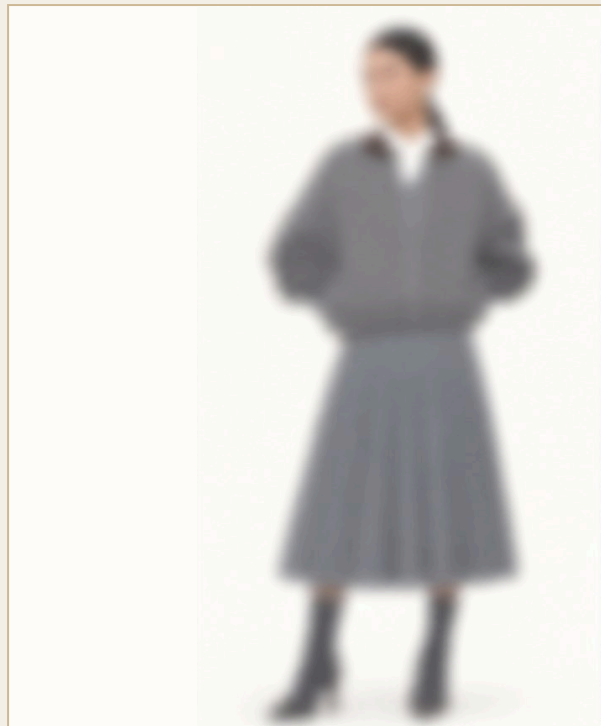

Here is one idea, complete — the first one, and the easiest to start tomorrow.

Blur the clothes.
Keep the relationships.

IDEA 1 OF 7

1 The knit replaces the jacket

Visual map:

soft textured upper volume + narrow dark accent + structured mid-length lower shape

What survives:

texture impression · proportions ·
vertical rhythm · colour balance

Possible read:

polished · modern · understated · intellectual

Rebuild cues:

textured cardigan or bomber ·
pleated midi skirt · collared shirt ·
socks and pointed shoes

WHAT SURVIVES THE BLUR

A short, rounded grey shape on top · a long narrow column below · one white mark at the throat.

WHY IT WORKS

It does the blazer's job, softly. A buttoned knit finishes the outfit like a jacket, but it bends with you — no stiff shoulders, no pulling across the back when you sit.

The white collar lifts the face. One clean line of white at the neck is the cheapest light you can wear.

THE ADJUSTMENT

Too formal? The same knit over straight dark jeans — the rounded top and the long line stay.

CLOSE-UP CHECK

Button it and look at the hem. The rib must sit on the hip and stay there — if it sags or flares, it reads as a cardigan.

TRY IT THIS WEEK

Button your warmest cardigan all the way up and wear it instead of a jacket over a shirt collar.

YOUR REBUILD

Grey cable-knit bomber cardigan

Massimo Dutti, Arket, COS

Grey pleated midi skirt

White shirt, collar out

Grey knee socks or opaque tights

Black slingbacks

INSIDE THE FULL NOTES

Nine more pages for members

The blur test · one grey, three textures · big knit, quiet bottom · the long cardigan as the coat · the knitted scarf over tailoring · soft knit, hard leather · the cardigan worn as the blouse — plus the four shop checks and ten outfits for this week.
