TRENDS SPOTTED FASHION

Your old Chanel can still be new.

“It’s what you decide to do with it.” — Matthieu Blazy

Most of us don’t have an old Chanel. But all of us have the decision. Chanel’s Spring 2027 show took pieces the house has worn for decades, the short jacket, the trim, the belt, the check, and changed the order they’re worn in. The order is free.

Each idea in these notes has two pages: the card from the video, then what the runway did, what the high street made, the rule, and how to do it with clothes you own today.

THE ONE TEST

*Can I name
the one decision
this outfit makes?*

If you can, it works with the label, or without it.

The background is a light beige surface with a faint grid pattern. On the left, there is a sketch of a dress with a fitted bodice and a full skirt. In the center, a large, gold-colored number '1' is formed by a thick, braided cord. To the right, there is a sketch of a long, flowing dress with a sheer layer. In the top right corner, a small bird is flying. There are also two pins with pearl heads: one in the top left and one in the bottom right. Dashed lines and small crosshair marks are scattered across the background.

Black, with a sheer layer.

THE RULE

Keep the jacket closed, and let the second texture do the talking.

SEARCH FOR “fitted black jacket” · “sheer knit top” · “black crepe midi dress”

IDEA 1

Black, with a sheer layer

ON THE RUNWAY

A short black jacket, closed with buttons, over a top you can see through and a black skirt. The sheer only shows at the neckline and between the buttons.

ON THE HIGH STREET

Zara: fitted black jacket + sheer black knit bodysuit + straight black trousers. The gentler version, J.Crew: black tweed jacket with gold buttons over a black crepe midi dress.

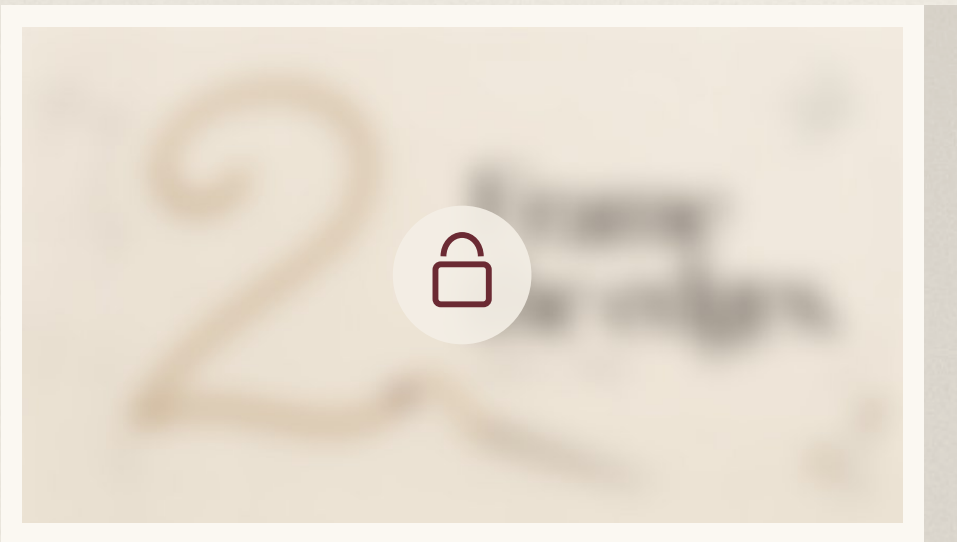

WITH WHAT YOU OWN

- Any black jacket that buttons high
- A black mesh, lace or fine-knit top under it
- Black trousers or a black skirt in a different fabric

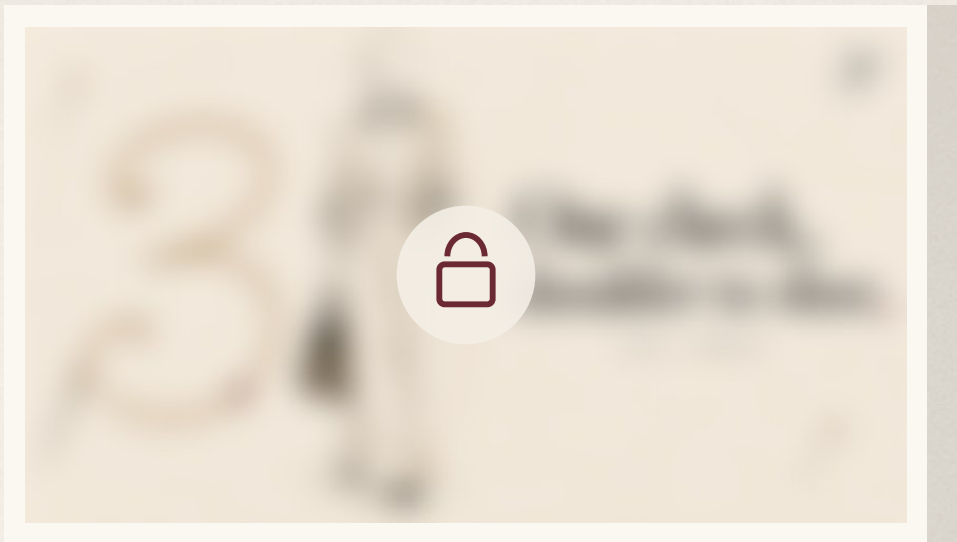

IF IT DOESN'T FEEL LIKE YOU

Not ready for sheer? Use black lace, satin or a fine rib instead. The idea is two textures, not transparency.

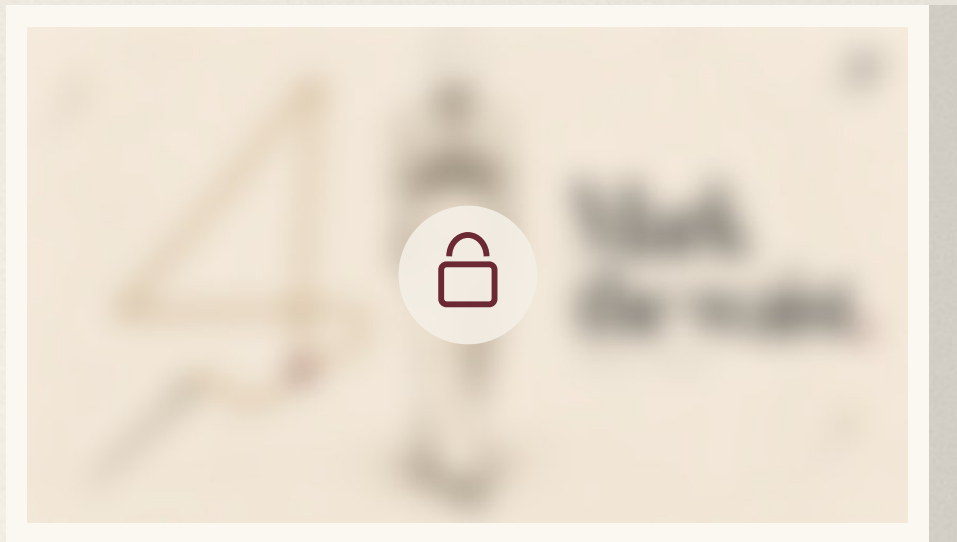

Six more decisions are waiting.
